

Friday 28th January 2022

Pupil Achievements

Stars of the Week

Class R: Orla—for an enthusiastic attitude and for being a role model to others

Class 1: Adam—for super focus in class and putting lots of effort into his writing

Class 3: Amelie—for always persevering in tasks and having a mature attitude

Class 4: Ella-Louise—for working so hard and diligently

Class 5: Leo—for impressive writing ideas and independent editing

Class 6: Skye—for working diligently to make sure her work is of the highest standard

Radio Northampton—National Storytelling Week

We are super excited that we will be featured on BBC Radio Northampton on Monday morning as part of National Storytelling Week. Tune in from 7:20am. We are being featured throughout the breakfast show—Mrs Pardon is up first!

Road Safety

It's been a few week's since I've raised road safety, however it is never far from my mind stood on the gate each morning when I'm welcoming everyone to school.

You may have noticed that we now have some yellow 'no parking' cones. I have taken this measure because we are continuing to get cars stopping and/or parking on the yellow zig-zags which as we know put our children and families in danger as it impedes the visibility for pedestrians to cross the road safely.

Governor Monitoring of Standards in our School

As part of the governing body's role in holding the school to account for the quality of education of the children in our school, the governors monitor teaching and learning in lessons.

On Wednesday, Charlotte Wilson, Ian Messenger, Margaret Ball and Martin Cox were in school to do a 'Governor Learning Walk'. They were looking specifically at the way our children engage with their lessons, their behaviour and their attitude towards school and learning. The team were able to feedback to the rest of the governors how well children learn in our school through: their focus in lessons; accurately pitched and challenging work and the secure relationships children have with the staff that they work with.

It is always a pleasure to share our children's learning with others!